Dorothy L. Smith
Pharm.D. (Pharmacy) 1972

Internationally recognized patient advocate and author

April 19 & 20, 2001

Hosted by College of Pharmacy

Co-hosts are College of Education & University College

In 1983, Dr. Dorothy Smith founded Consumer Health Information Corporation, a company internationally recognized for patient advocacy as well as innovative patient compliance and education programs and programs in disease management. That is just one high point in a stellar career for this strong patient advocate, who has devoted her career to helping people make informed decisions about health care and use of medications. Dr. Smith has appeared on radio and television programs across the country to increase awareness of the important role consumers play in their prescription drug therapy, also addressing audiences in the United States, Canada and Europe.

As a recognized authority on the use of prescription and nonprescription medications, Dr. Smith is a prolific author whose books give consumers easy-to-understand advice on how to use their medications effectively. Among her many affiliations, Dr. Smith is a Fellow and founding member of the American College of Clinical Pharmacy, a Fellow of the American College of Apothecaries, and a member of the American Medical Writers Association.

The University of Cincinnati created the Alumni Masters Series to take advantage of the wealth of experience within our alumni body and give alumni the opportunity to share those experiences with students. Alumni Masters are leaders in business and industry, in education and the arts, who have set new standards of accomplishment by which others measure themselves.
